'Adult' motel's final mission

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

One of West Sacramento's most notorious "no-tell motels" won't be going out with a bang. But the famously-purple "Experience Motel" on the 800-block of West Capitol Avenue will go out with some smoke and flames.

Local firefighters – and some from surrounding jurisdictions – will take turn lighting parts of it on fire and then putting out the blazes this week. Controlled burning of the purple and brick building began Tuesday morning.

The motel, recently disused, was first bought by developers who tried unsuccessfully to create an urban residential project, and then became property of the city redevelopment agency. City leaders, including Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and Councilman Bill Kristoff, visited the burn and touted the motel's removal as a step forward in the revitalization of West Capitol Avenue.

West Sacramento Fire Department Division Chief Gary Fredericksen said Yolo County firefighters will gain some experience from the old motel's destruction.

"They're going to tear it down anyway, so we're going to get some practice," said Fredericksen. "We'll have engine companies from Davis, Woodland and Sacramento all training here, lighting rooms on fire and putting it out."

Division Chief Jim Medich said the rooms were first filled with straw and wood pallets before being burned, so the flames would realistically follow a path into the building's attic spaces. Straw and wood were chosen, he said, because they caused less pollution than items including plastic and other materials.

Partial funding for deepening of port

The Port of Sacramento announced last week that the California Transportation Commission (CTC) has voted to provide $10 million from the Proposition 1B Trade Corridor Improvement Fund for a project deepen the Port's 43-mile ship channel from 30 feet to 35 feet.

"We're very pleased that the CTC understood the value of this much-needed project. Deepening the channel will significantly improve the competitive position of the Port as we continue to expand its role in the Sacramento region's economy," said Mike McGowan, Chairman of the Sacramento-Yolo Port Commission, in a press statement.

The channel-deepening project is estimated to cost up to $80 million. In addition to the $10 million approved today by the CTC, the Port will provide $10 million and it is seeking up to $60 million in federal funding through the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The deep-water ship channel runs from West Sacramento to the San Francisco Bay near Rio Vista. Deepening the channel by five feet will enable 75 percent of the world's shipping fleet to enter the Port fully loaded, according to Port Director Mike Luken. Currently only 30 percent of the world's ships can enter the Port with full loads.

The first eight miles of the deep-water ship channel extending from the Port were deepened to 35 feet by the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers in 1989 but the additional 35 miles of the channel remain at their original 30 foot depth.

Because the deepened-channel will enable more goods – including cement, fertilizer, lumber, steel, wind energy equipment, project cargo, rice and large construction materials – to be moved into and from the Sacramento area by ship, at least 23,545 two-way truck trips will be removed annually from Interstate 80 between the Port and Bay Area, with corresponding air quality and congestion benefits, said Luken.

The project also will provide fill material for potential use on Delta flood levees.

"This is a project with significant benefits for the Sacramento region and state," said Christopher Cabaldon, West Sacramento Mayor and Port Commissioner. "It helps to reduce congestion and air emissions, produces material to help strengthen area levees, and increases the efficiency with which materials to support the Sacramento region's economic growth can be exported and imported."

Construction is planned to begin in 2010 with completion by 2013.

Officials: justice for victims

Prevent crimes, bring perpetrators to speedy trial, urge D.A. & mayor

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's city hall hosted a Yolo County ceremony marking "National Crime Victims Week" on Monday.

Among those present to rally for "justice for victims" were District Attorney Jeff Reisig, West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon and West Sacramento Police Chief Dan Drummond.

"Here in Yolo County last year, there were over 8,000 crimes committed against our citizens," District Attorney Reisig told a gathered crowd. "For every one of those crimes, there were victims. We remind everybody that victims have every bit as many rights as criminals."

"Unfortunately, there are hundreds of victims – if not thousands – waiting for justice," he continued. "Frankly, our jail is filled to the brim with suspects awaiting trial. That's just not right."

Reisig says his staff wears a ribbon with the slogan "Justice finds no solace in delay." They wear those words to court.

"The judges have to look at it, the defendants have to look at it," he said.

Mayor Cabaldon told the crowd "we have a renewed commitment in the City of West Sacramento. We have a continued interest in protecting the citizens. . to make sure we create no more victims, and to help those we were unable to protect."

Throughout the public comments, a pair of volunteers held a large poster that displayed the faces, mostly smiling, of people who had been murdered in the county.

"I want you all to take just a moment to look at this mural," Reisig asked the crowd. "This is just a small sampling of people who were murdered in Yolo County.

Fire on Laurel Lane

A propane barbecue caused a fire at a home on Laurel Lane on Sunday at about 5:30 p.m., reports the West Sacramento Fire Department.

"Firefighters responded to a structure fire at 1741 Laurel Lane," said Division Chief Gary Fredericksen. "On arrival, firefighters found a fire to the rear of the structure that spread to the attic of the home. The fire was quickly extinguished and no one in the residence was injured."

The attic was heavily damaged, though, and the residents were displaced from the house, he added.

Conviction in West Sac molestation case

A 34-year old man was convicted March 28 on child molesting dating from a November incident involving a 14-year old girl and 19-year old woman in West Sacramento.

The Yolo County District Attorney's office reports that Trevor Paulus was convicted of two counts of "lewd and lascivious acts" on the 14-year old and one count of attempted sexual battery on the 19-year old.

During the night, Paulus went into the room where the pair were sleeping and assaulted them, said the D.A.'s office.

"Paulus violated these two girls when they were most vulnerable," said Deputy District Attorney Tiffany Susz in a press release. "The jury's guilty verdicts show the victims the importance of coming forward when abused and that sexual abuse will not be tolerated."

He faces a maximum sentence of almost four years in state prison. Sentencing is scheduled for April 25.

Apparent drowning

The second body this month has been pulled from the West Sacramento riverfront.

Fishermen spotted the body of 36-year old Shannon Patrick Casey of Visalia near South River Road, just south of the Stone Locks on Thursday. The body was about 15 feet from shore.

Autopsy results were not available, but a coroner's office spokesperson said the accident was being investigated as an accidental drowning death.

Remembering Eddie

Note: This past weekend, I was once again reminded of what great friends I've been blessed with over the years and the following column – which I wrote more than a decade ago – suddenly seemed like it deserved to see the light of day again:

Last Saturday, I decided to jump in my little truck and spend most of a rare sunny January afternoon driving around all by myself up in the foothills, near where Marshall first discovered gold. The idea was to get away from everything and everyone for a few hours and the foothills rank second only to the ocean when it comes to great places to visit for a quick retreat.

Anyway, just before dark, and with God thankfully back in his heaven, I wheeled up in front of my house and turned off the ignition. But before I could even open my door, one of my sons raced up to me and yelled through my rolled-up window, "Just where in the world have you been all day?"

Knowing that my kids keep better track of me than I do of them, I rolled down my window and said, "I just went for a little drive."

"Well," said my son with obvious concern, "you better get in the house, and quick!"

"Why?"

"Because a strange man has been in there with Mom all day long."

"Really?" I said, stepping out of my truck.

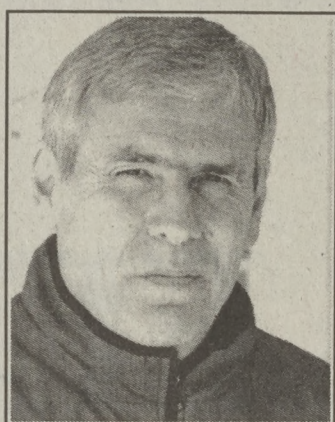

"He says he's an old Army buddy of yours, but I don't remember you ever talking about him."

I wonder who it could be, I thought to myself, knowing how hard I had worked over the years not to stay in touch with the memories and people from my two years in the Army. "What's his name?" I asked my son as we made our way towards the front door.

"Eddie somebody," answered my son, "and he's got this big ugly beard and..."

"Eddie!" I exclaimed. "You're kidding?"

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Before my son could respond, there was Eddie Freitas, still obviously strong as an ox and looking like he hadn't aged a day, standing in the doorway. "Well," he said with the same genuine smile which had won me over the very first time we met, "don't I get a hug or something?"

After he finished squeezing the life out of me, I apologized for keeping him waiting all afternoon and we sat down to reminisce. As he began to bring me up-to-date on what was going on in his life, I found myself eagerly awaiting all the wonderful little detours which are always a part of any conversation with Eddie. I also found my thoughts drifting all the way back to 1969, when Eddie and I had suddenly found ourselves thrown together in a place neither one of us wanted to be – Army Basic Training Platoon D-1-1 in Fort Lewis, Washington.

Eddie was unlike anyone I had ever met before. He had this incredible sense of right and wrong and he absolutely insisted on being treated like he treated others, with honesty and fairness. He didn't like people playing head games with him, no matter what their rank, and he was extremely sensitive to all of the injustices of the world, many of which he seemed to go to war with on an almost daily basis. I would often remind him of a quote someone had once told me, that "There are things worth fighting to the death for, but they are very few and far between", but he would have none of it.

For instance, since the Army was getting us up at 5:30 every morning and running us into the ground until darkness mercifully arrived, Eddie figured that the very least they could do was provide us with three decent meals every day. He could accept the fact that the food itself was often inedible, but always serving such small portions (Eddie was a big eater) was simply unacceptable. It just wasn't fair, and he was the only one with enough guts to constantly complain about it.

Eddie also liked to work hard and look sharp, and I was always in awe of the way he would volunteer for all of the hated barracks maintenance details and then still somehow manage to show up at the crack of dawn for morning formation with an impeccable uniform and the glossiest spit-shined boots in our squad.

Above all, Eddie, who had the body of a weightlifter, valued loyalty, and if you were lucky enough to be one of his carefully selected friends, you could count on getting through Basic Training without so much as a dirty look being thrown your way by guys twice your size.

When Basic Training finally came to an end, and as I stood in formation next to Eddie awaiting the orders which would tell us if we were going to be sent to Vietnam or not (we had already been informed that at least 90 percent of our graduating class would probably end up there), I can remember thinking to myself that Eddie would definitely be going, because kind and sensitive people like him are almost too good for this world, and they always somehow seem to end up getting the short end of the stick.

Then, after we had both finished silently reading the orders which had been handed to us, I looked over at him and his face seemed so sad. "You, too, huh?" I said to him, figuring for sure from his expression that he, like me, had received orders for Advanced Infantry Training at Fort Lewis, which was a guaranteed ticket to the war in Vietnam.

"No," he said quietly, almost as if he had something to apologize for, "it looks like they're going to train me down South in Georgia to be a military policeman – and then send me off to Germany." Then, well-aware of the fact that I usually needed a lot of looking after, he added, "Damn, I always kinda thought we would be going over to Nam together."

We looked at each other, me so happy for him and he so very sad for me, and it was only then that I realized what a wonderful friend he had become, and how lucky I was to have him standing there by my side as I tried real hard to act like I wasn't scared to death.

The 2007/08 NBA playoffs brackets are set in the Eastern Conference with the No. 1 seed Boston Celtics hosting the Mike Bibby led Atlanta Hawks. Detroit will play the 76ers and the Orlando Magic tangle with the Toronto Raptors while LeBron James and his No. 4 seed Cavs host the Washington Wizards.

In the Western Conference, the brackets will be completed after the season ends on Wednesday night. The Lakers seem to have a lock on the No. 1 seed and the Utah Jazz have won their division but only one game separates the No. 2 seed and the No. 6 seed.

The Lakers can lock up the home court advantage and the No. 1 seed with a win at home against Sacramento on Tuesday. The Hornets and the Spurs are battling for the top spot but the Hornets must finish their season on Wednesday with a game in Dallas while the Spurs close out the season at home against Utah.

up their 2007/08 season with a final curtain call in Los Angeles against Kobe and his first place Lakers on Tuesday. The Kings finished up their home season with Brad Miller and Ron Artest on the bench in street clothes while the youngsters Spencer Hawes (17 pts.), Quincy Douby (7 pts.) and Francisco Garcia (17 pts.) ran the court against the NBA champion Spurs. The Kings lost the game 101-98 but had two opportunities to sink three pointers in the last seconds to win their home finale.

Kevin Martin, the Kings' leading scorer, was awarded the team's Oscar Robinson Triple Double award. The award is given to a player who is a team leader, embodies the spirit of sportsmanship and has an all-round game. Martin was 6th among the scoring leaders this season in the NBA.

The Golden State Warriors playoff hopes for the second consecutive year went up in smoke in Phoenix. The Warriors (48-33) loss left them one game behind the Nuggets and entered them into the NBA history books as the winningest team not to reach the playoffs since the league expanded to 16 playoff teams in 1983-84.

Diamond Notes

The Oakland A's (9-5) are off to a good start leading the American League West by one game over the Angels. The A's returned to Oakland after freezing out in Cleveland playing in 38 degree weather.

The A's will be at home during the week hosting Seattle and then Kansas City will come to town for a weekend series. The Giants will be hitting the road this week to St. Louis and Arizona.

The River Cats (5-6) finally won their first home game on Monday night with a 11-5 whipping of the Las Vegas 51s. Las Vegas spoiled their home opener on Friday night but the three-day opening weekend drew 37,766 fans to Raley Field. The Gatos held a celebration on opening night before a sold out crowd of 14,000 to hand out their PCL championship rings.

The A's already started to mess with the Cats line-up calling up starting pitcher, Kirk Saarloos, and replaced him with Graham Godfrey, who pitched with Class A Stockton.

Speaking of big league promotions, what about the Giants newest hitting sensation outfielder John Bowker. The Giants sent a limo to pick up the power hitting outfielder from Fresno at 7 a.m. on Saturday just in time to take batting practice and get penciled in the starting line-up against the Cardinals.

The Rio Americano High School product celebrated a great weekend in his first trip to the Major leagues. Bowker, who was only hitting .185 with no homers in 27 trips to the plate at Fresno, singled in his first at bat and then hit a three-run homer to become the eighth player in G-Men history to club a homer in his first major-league game.

The story gets better for the home grown kid especially after he clubbed another home run on Sunday to become the first Giants player in franchise history to homer in his first two games. Bowker, 24, who did hit .307 with 22 home runs and 90 RBI's in 139 games in Double-A last season, enjoyed a two-day

After shutting out visiting Sacramento Country Day (SCD) later in the week, the Raiders find themselves with a two-match cushion atop the Capital Valley Conference (CVC) with a perfect 6-0 record.

At Center, River City was led by the boys singles pair of Chris Salazar and Doug Tipton. Salazar breezed to a 6-1, 6-0 victory in the #1 spot and Tipton won handily 6-0, 6-3 at #2. On the girls side, Cindy Yang took a marathon 6-1, 5-7, 6-4 win at #1 while Svetlana Istomin won quickly 6-1, 6-0 in the #2 position.

Although the Raiders lost the mixed doubles match, they had comfortable wins in all the boys and girls doubles contests. Dipak Patel and Jim Saetern (#1) and Phi Dinh and Vongsri Vang (#2) each won their boys doubles matches 10-5. In the girls pairs, Yelena Ionova and Tamara Lopatin dropped just four games at #1 and Yian Saetern and Ranika Prasad did one better, winning 10-3.

Local kids can try fishing

From Clayton Blakeley
West Sacramento Rotary

The West Sacramento and Centennial Rotary Clubs in partnership with West Sacramento Parks and Recreation invite families to join in the fun for the 2nd Annual Take a Kid Fishing in the City event on Saturday, April 26th from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The fishing and festivities will take place at the pond next to Our Lady of Grace School (1990 Linden Road — parking in the school parking lot) and will be free to kids 15 and under.

Kids who are not experienced or lack equipment won't have to worry since the Department of Fish and Game will again be on hand this year to provide free loaner equipment and a free fishing clinic.

Last year, well over 200 West Sacramentans came out for the inaugural event, and boys and girls of all ages enjoyed the fishing and attractions, including an opportunity to meet public safety representatives from the Police and Fire Departments. Firefighters assisted kids in testing the "fire power" of the hoses on a brand new fire engine from the newly commissioned Station 45, as well as let them sit in the driver's seat. Police and Fire Department representatives will be on hand again with a fire engine (if not in use for an emergency), fire boat and police boat.

"Take a Kid Fishing in the City" is sponsored jointly by the Rotary Club of West Sacramento, Centennial Rotary Club and the Department of Parks and Recreation. Kokanee Power, a statewide fishing organization which supports children's education on fishing and wildlife, is also participating as the refreshments sponsor for the second consecutive year.

The idea behind the event is not only to provide a free, safe and educational outdoor activity for kids and their families to enjoy, but to create a community event where families can meet one another as well as the people that provide a public service.

City I.T. Manager and current president of the West Sacramento Rotary, Drew Gidlof is an avid fisherman who was excited to share his passion for the sport with kids who otherwise may not have had the opportunity. He conceived the idea as a new Rotary-sponsored community event and co-chaired the effort with the West Sacramento Centennial Rotary Club president Tony Schwall.

Gidlof combines his passion with fishing and Rotary and established the theme "Get Hooked on Rotary" for his administration's term. It seems to working as the club continues to attract new members.

Schwall and Gidlof anticipate the April 26th "Take a Kid Fishing in the City" event to be even larger this year, and look forward to getting more West Sacramento kids "hooked on fishing."

And the phone book collection winner is...

From the City of West Sacramento

West Sacramento schools accepted the challenge of the City of West Sacramento & AT&T The Real Yellow Pages by collecting over 9000 telephone books for recycling!

Bridgeway Island Elementary School is the winner of the challenge collecting 3542 books earning them the top AT&T prize of $250.00 and 10 cases of 100% recycled paper. Southport School also had a significant contribution collecting over 3000 books. Other schools participating were Holy Cross, Westmore Oaks Main and Westmore Oaks North Campus.

In addition to the cash prize award, Waste Management, the local waste hauler, paid schools participating 10 cents for every book collected earning West Sacramento schools another nearly $1,000. An assembly will be held at Bridgeway Island Elementary on Friday, April 18th to present Principal Chin with the award for the school and to honor the top class with an ice cream party from Marble Slab Creamery.

The telephone book recycling project is one component of the City's outreach to local schools. Phone Books may also be recycled year round in curbside recycling carts.

Well, I guess I spoke to early last week when I said the G-men were pretty bad this season and that there was no hope in the minor league system! Well, I was wrong — maybe not about the Giants season potential — but about their players in the farm system. If you can't have a little hope what do you have!

Enjoy your day — see ya next week!

Sarah Aguilar won 10-1 at #1 girls doubles, while Dinh and Jim Saetern (#1 boys), Vang and Trevor Langford (#2 boys), and Patel and Yian Saetern (mixed) all won 10-0. In singles action, Tipton won 6-1, 2-6, 6-4 in the #2 boys slot while Salazar lost only on game in the #1 boys match, and both Yang (#1) and Ionova (#2) surrendered just two games each in girls singles.

In the week ahead, RC travels to both of the second place CVC teams, facing West Campus tomorrow and Dixon next Tuesday, April 22nd. The Raiders are now 15-0 overall in 2008.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It was noted wit Oscar Wilde who made the following sage observation: "Biography lends to death a new terror."

• You may not realize it, but you have almost certainly engaged in stermutation at some point in your life — and if you're like me, you do it regularly every spring when the pollen count is high. Stermutation is simply the act of sneezing.

• Iconic fashion designer Ralph Lauren started out his career as a glove salesman.

• I wouldn't be surprised if you've never heard of Dion McGregor, who, as a songwriter, achieved only very modest success — most notably as the co-writer of the Barbra Streisand song "Where Is the Wonder." He did achieve notoriety in some circles, however, for a very strange characteristic: He talked in his sleep. Somnoliquy is not rare, but McGregor took it to new levels. He spoke very clearly, essentially narrating his bizarre dreams, such as flying to the moon with a group of children on a hot-air balloon. You might wonder how I know what his dreams were like, and that's where his notoriety comes into play: In 1964, Decca Records released the album "The Dream World of Dion McGregor (He Talks in His Sleep)," perhaps the only commercial recording during which the performer is not conscious at all.

• As spring progresses, those of us in the southern latitudes of the United States are preparing for another long, hot summer. We should count our blessings, though, and keep in mind that it could be worse: The lowest temperature ever recorded in the tiny Southeast Asia nation of Singapore is 66 degrees Fahrenheit — and that was during a particularly chilly winter.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento river registered 6 feet 1 inch, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

A Mexican with a knife and quite a load of something that elated his feelings invaded the Washington Hotel yesterday to his sorrow. Be it said simply that he left the premises regretting that he ever felt he could lick anybody and everybody in the institution. Several patrons of the place were quietly sitting around in the parlor. Some were reading, some chatting and some discussing the medical association meeting in San Francisco. The Mexican believed he had a right to interfere with all these peaceful occupations and deliberately drawing his case knife he proceeded to carve up Bill Campbell. Campbell objected and made a hasty retreat. This encouraged the Mexican, who immediately proceeded to analyze the anatomy of Anastasia Cortopassi, the proprietor of the institution. A chair protected Cortopassi for a few minutes and then Bill Campbell returned armed with the leg of a chair. Seeing this formidable weapon, the Mexican backed out the front door with Campbell following closely. Out on the levee Bill capped the southern aztec on the forehead with the chair round, drawing a slight flow of blood. No man ever saw a child whimper more piteously than the Mexican did when he saw the blood flowing down his nose and he even tried to draw the sympathy of the neighbors by shedding copious tears of regret for his past action. The last heard of him he was on his way towards the M street bridge, talking to somebody, but having no one to listen, there was no damage done.

LYDIA PINKHAM HELPS OUT DETECTIVES IN SEARCH

Somewhat of a disappointment it was last Friday night to two Yolo County detectives who raided the Washington Hotel, ransacking the place, and for their trouble found only a bottle of Lydia Pinkham's Compound.

The cook, a poor woman who has been under the weather for some time, has been using the compound to get relief.

The detectives made a great showing and a great deal of noise. In the cellar, in the attic, in the rain barrel, in the cesspool, they looked for booze, and at last gave up in despair because none was to be had.

"Ah ha!" At last, the guilty evidence was found. Quietly resting on a shelf in the pantry the guilty bottle was discovered, and the detectives went away rejoicing. They informed the owners of the place to appear for examination before the United States Commissioner and the precious bottle of Lydia's Compound was taken to the Puritanical Precincts of the county seat of Woodland.

On examination it was found to contain about 70 per cent of alcohol, but being a medicine and published as such it couldn't be held as evidence against a bootlegger.

Next morning it was returned to the poor cook in the Washington Hotel, who had suffered all night from back-aches and stomachaches and other aches.

PAPER AND PULP FACTORY MAY LOCATE HERE

Word to the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce indicates there is a possibility that a paper factory may locate in this vicinity.

The United States Fibre Products plant located in West Sacramento was constructed purposely for the manufacture of pulp, and with very little remodeling could be made over into a paper factory. Especially because the material to be used in the manufacture of the pulp is available in great quantities from both the large rice mills located in West Sacramento. A Sacramento publication says of the possibility:

The Sacramento Chamber of Commerce has received a communication from the president of the Planters' Pulp and Produce Company of Philadelphia, saying that he expects soon to visit this city to investigate the pulp possibilities here.

The plan is to utilize straw from the rice fields, thus making use of a material now going to waste.

It is believed the excellent water is visiting his former schoolmates here today.

K. Johns is visiting Olaf Johnson. Mrs. A. Trelour is on the sick list. Hayward Reed has finished irrigating his pear orchard.

The residents of Bryte who attended the closing exercises of St. Joseph's Academy pronounce the play as well rendered, the same being a great credit to the Sisters for their painstaking efforts.

AGED AND BLIND ARE VICTIMS OF PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS IN WASHINGTON

A. L. James, familiarly known as "Jitney," was arrested last Tuesday in his houseboat by Detectives M. A. Carpenter and J. Holland, operatives from the district attorney's office in Woodland.

Another old couple, Dennis Gregory and wife, both over 78 years of age, were arrested for selling intoxicants to their neighbors and for distilling corn whiskey in their little shack just north of the M street bridge.

James has been a resident of this locality for many years. He is a single man and has lived in the houseboat on the riverbank for many years past.

About four years ago he lost his sight to such an extent that he is practically incapacitated from doing any kind of work. Lately a few friends have been helping him out by patronizing him and in this way he has been making just about enough to keep body and soul together.

But prohibition and its detectives know no law when in quest of the elusive intoxicant. They had heard that "Jitney" was selling jackass and they decided to place him under arrest. They did so last Tuesday and found in his little houseboat a small quantity of liquor which he had been using for his own purposes.

"Jitney" has been placed under arrest, his houseboat consisting of one room is empty, and if he is fined for having in his possession a little corn whiskey, the probability is that he will have to go to jail.

One thing is certain, he has no funds to pay a fine, for he has been barely eking out an existence, and were it not that his friends patronized him he would have been a charge on the county before now.

"Jitney" would like to work and make an honest living. He has worked until his sight became so poor that he could work no longer. Three operations were performed that gave him some relief, but he is still unable to do any manual labor.

Dennis Gregory and wife are both 78 years of age. The old gentleman has ceased working and in order to eke out an existence he conceived the idea of distilling corn and sugar to sell to his neighbors and those who knew him. The detectives found him. He is under arrest. Likely he will go to jail for he has no funds to pay a fine. And during the time he will be in jail, his wife will have to go to the poor house and be a public charge on the people who inflicted the Volstead Law on the United States.

But such is the inexorable mandate of the Volstead Law.

Surely those detectives made a big haul when they took into custody an old couple over 78 years of age and a man blind after several operations that failed to relieve him.

Glory to God, we have a great country.

FIRE RAVAGED PACKING HOUSE OF SACRAMENTO NORTHERN YESTERDAY

The packing house and store house of the Sacramento Northern Railway located at the northern end of the Reed orchard and a few hundred feet from the end of the M street bridge was completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon at about 5 p. m.

Several people, estimated at about twenty, were busy packing pears in the packing shed at that time. They wanted to finish the day's work as soon as possible and were hurrying along at the time.

Suddenly one of them discovered the warehouse just behind them on fire and gave the alarm. Unfortunately there is no fire department, paid or voluntary, in the district so that the best the packers could do was to move their belongings and whatever tools and fruit they could reach.

The warehouse was filled with box shoo and other inflammable material that immediately got on fire. There was no saving of anything on the premises although within a few hundred feet the fire hose of the Sacramento Dock and Warehouse Company was available, if only there were some trained hands to extend the water supply to the fire.

In the vicinity of the warehouse was a large stack of loose alfalfa hay of about one hundred tons that immediately caught on fire from the warehouse. This became dangerous and an appeal was made to the Sacramento Fire Department in an effort to quench the blaze in the hay.

A chemical engine was sent over by Fire Chief Dunphy that stopped the blazing hay and saved much other material in the vicinity.

Pears are being picked in the Reed orchard and were being packed in the warehouse just destroyed.

J. W. Grace, manager of the orchard for the corporation, will start today to erect another packing shed so that the balance of the crop of the Reed orchard may be saved and shipped as usual.

The exact loss through the fire cannot be estimated at this writing but is surely not less than $50,000.

that will be available when the filtration plant is completed will make this a specially desirable point for the manufacture of paper, as well as for other industrial enterprises.

GO FIGURE!

by Linda Thistle

"Superhero Movie"

Running time: 85 minutes
 MPA rating: PG-13

Don't be fooled by the running time listed above. "Superhero Movie" is actually a little over an hour long, with about 10 minutes of outtakes and then a couple minutes of credits. So, you're getting essentially half a movie, but paying full price.

And that's only the beginning of this rip-off.

"Superhero Movie" isn't as bad as "Meet The Spartans" or "Date Movie," but that's not really much of a compliment. It's kinda like saying, "Well, the tumor's not THAT big."

The film stars a gaggle of C-list comics and has-beens who allegedly spoof the first "Spider-Man" film (which came out six years ago, so you know the jokes are going to be fresh); but instead of the hero being bitten by a radioactive spider, the guy gets nipped by a genetically modified dragonfly.

The film plods along, following the same plot as the Spider-Man movie, with a few diversions to make fun of The X-Men and Batman franchises. The laughs are few and far between, and are usually prompted by the film's only saving grace, Leslie Nielsen, the master of deadpan camp delivery.

In fact, the only reason I would recommend watching "Superhero Movie" is because it'll probably be Nielsen's last film. I mean, the guy can't last much longer. Leslie Nielsen's so old that at his bar mitzvah he received the gift of Fire.

And for the record, that joke is 100 times funnier than any line in "Superhero Movie."

Here's the problem with "Superhero Movie" and the rest of the so-called spoof genre: Recognition isn't a punch line.

Drake Bell as Dragonfly

For example, in an early scene, the hero (Drake Bell) gets an instant message on his computer: "Professor X has added you as a friend on Facebook." This is supposed to be funny, because The Kids Are On The Facebook, and they'll laugh cuz we said Facebook.

I'd like to think that "Superhero Movie" would be the last time we see one of these spoof flicks ever again. But then I'm reminded that I live in a country where "Are You Smarter Than a Fifth Grader?" is a hit TV show.

Q. Please tell me what happened to "Shark"? All of a sudden it's gone from Sunday (after they moved it there), and I can't find it anywhere. — Eileen C., Punta Gorda, Fla.

A. "Shark" certainly has been getting the runaround since debuting on CBS in September 2006, moving from Thursday to Sunday, and now to Tuesday. Beginning April 29, the legal drama, with star James Woods, will switch to Tuesdays at 9 p.m. EDT, when it will air its remaining four post-writers' strike episodes.

Q. I saw "Mean Girls" on TV the other day and had a question about the actor who played Aaron Daniels, the boy who Lindsay Lohan and Rachel McAdams' characters fought over. Isn't he Superman from the movie "Superman Returns"? — Olivia, Springfield, Ohio

A. While the two actors bear a striking resemblance to one another, Jonathan Bennett played Aaron Daniels on "Mean Girls," and Brandon Routh is the latest Man of Steel. They both have ABC soap operas in common as well: Aaron was on "All My Children," and Brandon was on "One Life to Live." Brandon, who is Jonathan's senior by two years, has five movies coming out in the next few years, including "Lie to Me," "The Informers" and "Miss Nobody." Jonathan has had guest spots on "Smallville" (another "Superman" connection), as well as "Veronica Mars" and "Cane."

Q. Missing from "Dancing With the Stars" is the charm, humor and terrific routines of Maks. Why isn't he on this season? — Irene T., via e-mail

A. Ukrainian dancer Maksim Chmerkovskiy was my favorite dancer on "DWTS," too. I was really pulling for him and Laila Ali to win the title on Season Four of the hit ABC show, and for him and Melanie Brown to win Season Five. Maks has had his share of controversy with the show, publicly stating that he would not be back after losing in the fifth season. He has since retracted his statement, explaining that he was just frustrated during the interview because he and Melanie had just lost. Maks is contractually obligated to perform on five seasons, and so far he has been on only four. So, we can expect to see him on at least one more season.

Q. I have been a great fan of "Army Wives" (on USA network, I believe) and wonder if it is ever going to come back. The last episode was such a dramatic ending, I have wondered about it since. — Earl C., via e-mail

A. The freshman season of this record-setting Lifetime Television drama series ended with quite a cliff-hanger. Pretty much everyone is at the local bar, consoling one another about their husbands' recent deployment, when Marilyn's husband walks in with a bomb strapped to his chest. The show is set to return for Season Two on June 8, and Catherine Bell promises fans that there won't be a dry eye in the house.

Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS

by Steven Austin

Grover

Brought to you by the letter G, it's Grover, Sesame Street's favorite blue resident. Grover joins pals Bert, Ernie and Prairie Dawn in two new high-flying Play With Me Sesame DVDs: "Let's Play Games" and "Imagine With Me," from Genius Products and Sesame Workshop. The DVDs are filled with interactive fun designed to help preschoolers learn social, cognitive and emotional skills in an entertaining way.

After three decades on Sesame Street, Grover remains excitable, caring and compulsive, a combination that proves particularly volatile when he rushes into situations without analyzing the consequences. Children and adults connect with Grover when he is confounded by adult logic, and share his fantasy of competence and control when he becomes 'Super Grover,' a problem-solving superhero who can do no wrong. Look for the DVDs at bookstores, video stores and online. To learn more: www.sesamestreet.com who has the best and worst manners at the dinner table?

"Cookie Monster definitely has the worst manners. You can always tell when Cookie Monster has been around, because there will be crumbs everywhere! Bert, on the other hand, is a bit of a neat freak. You would never find him eating with his hands. In fact, he always carries around his own personal set of silverware just in case someone invites him over for dinner. I do not think he has ever had to use it."

You must love some food with 'sesame' seeds, right?

"Certainly. Many breads have sesame seeds and are delicious. However, please do not make me choose between sesame seeds and peanut butter. I cannot stand the thought of disappointing all those cute little sesame seeds."

Being the color blue, do you feel bad that there aren't enough blue-colored foods? For the ones that exist, which are your favorites?

"Blue is 'blue-tiful!' There are not many monsters or foods that are blue, but that is OK. It just means we are unique. Blueberries are the only food I think I have had that are blue. And they are mmm-mmmm good! Especially in a pie. I have seen other blue foods in the refrigerator, but my mommy always throws them away before I have a chance to taste them."

How is the food in Hooper Store on Sesame Street?

"It is very good. Alan, the shopkeeper, makes a mean peanut butter sandwich, too. Just make sure you specify 'creamy.' He has not quite mastered the 'chunky' yet."

What country's food, other than the U.S., do you like the most?

"I have traveled all over, and enjoy all the different flavors and spices of the world. However, I must admit to a penchant for peanuts, and particularly peanut butter. Peanut butter is American, but in Thailand, they use a lot of peanut sauce, which is yummy, too."

Voters Urged To Fight Obesity In The Voting Booth

(NAPS)—The fight against obesity in America is a major battle, and one that should matter to voters this year.

Two out of three Americans suffer from overweight or obesity and studies show that having obesity increases your risk of developing over 50 other diseases including diabetes, cardiovascular disease and cancer.

"Voters should demand that presidential candidates make obesity a national public health priority."
—Campaign to End Obesity

Many health experts agree that obesity is a complex disease that will not go away unless government action is taken.

"If I were running for office and something affected two-thirds of my constituents, I would certainly have something to say about the issue. Voters should demand that the next administration's health care platform address obesity directly. Otherwise, all other health care reforms will be dwarfed by the rising costs," said Jessica Donze Black, executive director of the Campaign to End Obesity, a nonprofit organization dedicated to fighting America's costly obesity epidemic.

When Americans cast their votes, the candidates' plans for addressing the obesity epidemic should factor into their decisions. Federal policy could play a critical role in reversing the current trend by increasing opportunities for physical activity, improving access to healthy foods and fixing the health care delivery system to better prevent, manage and treat the condition.

For more information to help guide your vote, visit www.obesitycampaign.org.

Everything that needs to be said has already been said. But since no one was listening, everything must be said again.
